FAQ (Frequently asked questions)

- What should I do first? Contact us with the age range, level and number of students that you would like a show for. We will then let you know what the possibilities are.
- What is the ideal number of students for a show? 100-150.
- Is there an extra charge for travelling costs? No, the price is final.
- Are the actors native speakers? Not only native speakers, but there will usually be one or two in the team.

Why theatre in English

- The language we learn in the classroom is often theoretical, while in real life, words are just part of a complicated live communication process. Theatre brings 'living' language to students in a way that normal classroom teaching can not.
- Live theatre creates genuine emotional reactions in the audience (as well as laughter). This motivates students to feel positive about learning the language. It also helps them learn specific elements of the language (grammar, phrases, etc.) in a memorable way.
- The shows are supported by teaching materials, which teachers can use before or after a show to link the theatre experience to their classroom teaching.

A Show Full of Lies

We all think that it is wrong to lie, but we all do it sometimes. In fact lying and working out if others are lying to us is a major part of human interaction. This show looks at different aspects of lying, some of the fun sides and some of the serious sides too.

The History of England Part 1

Who built Stonehenge? What was so great about Alfred the Great? Out of the wives of Henry VIII. who was killed, who divorced, and who died naturally? This very entertaining show presents the main events of English History in a fun and interactive way.
