- Interactive theatre shows for students of English aged 5-18
- Playing directly in your school or in a theatre near you
- Established in 1994
- Over 900 shows played in Europe every year
- Native English speakers and fluent speakers from other countries

Why theatre in English

- The language we learn in the classroom is often theoretical, while in real life, words are just part of a complicated live communication process. Theatre brings 'living' language to students in a way that normal classroom teaching can not.
- Live theatre creates genuine emotional reactions in the audience (as well as laughter). This motivates students to feel positive about learning the language. It also helps them learn specific elements of the language (grammar, phrases, etc.) in a memorable way.
- The shows are supported by teaching materials, which teachers can use before or after a show to link the theatre experience to their classroom teaching.

FAQ (Frequently asked questions)

- What should I do first? Choose 2-3 possible dates and contact us.
- What is the ideal number of students for a show? 100-150.
- Is there an extra charge for travelling costs? No, the price is final.
- Are the actors native speakers? Not only native speakers, but there will usually be one or two in the team.

A Selection of Our Shows

A Show Full of Lies

We all think that lying is wrong, but we all do it sometimes. In fact lying and working out if others are lying is a major element in human interaction. This show looks at different aspects of lying, mostly the fun sides but a few more serious sides too.

level: upper-intermediate | age: 15-18 years

The Detectives

The Detectives is an entertaining and interactive love-story/murder-mystery set in an English cabaret. One of the actors is murdered during a performance. The audience work with the actors to discover who the killer was.
